When Tim Murphy was playing "A Capitol Comedy" in Chicago he had a draft for sixteen hundred dollars stolen from him, It was in his street suit which he had changed for his dress suit before going to the theatre in anticipation of a supper afterwards. The sneak also got away with about three dollars in change. Mr Murphy makes a rule of keeping the number of drafts so he at once stopped payment and says he would cheerfully loose the three dollars to see the theif try to collect the other.

The Serene Themes

By F. H. LANCASTER.

(Copyright, 1901, by Authors Syndicate.)

THE rain swept down upon the marshes in long, thin slants and the girl paused to gaze upon it with delighted eyes. Sidney Lanier's lines were in her heart and presently she gave them voice, joying with sympathy in the scene before her:

"Ye marshes, how candid and simple, and nothing withholding and free. Ye publish yourselves to the sky and offer yourselves to the sea.

Tolerant plains, that suffer the sea and the rains and the sun, Ye spread and span like the catholic man who has mightily won

God out of knowledge and good out of infinite pain, And sight out of blindness, and purity out of a stain."

She gazed a moment and then tramped on through the wet, turning her head from time to time that the east wind might dash the fine rain against her face.

How glorious it was. All this fresh air and freedom after that close, smelly sitting-room at home.

"And those poor pitiful creatures, eramped up in stuffy chairs worshiping their serene Themes," she murmured. "Because it is customary to stay indoors when it rains, they would die for want of fresh air rather than not stay there." And she splashed her rubber boots delightedly through a shining pool of new-fallen water. "I have little use for you, O Themes. Your ideas of right and wrong do not satisfy the deeper instincts of my soul. Your eternal fitness of things appears to me as a shallow subterfuge.

Some one laughed at her elbow. "And souls have instincts?"

"It is you," she commented, calmly. "Me," he admitted, "in my prehistoric duck paraphernalia." The girl laughed.

"You look it-every inch," she criticised, frankly.

"You didn't suppose that I was going to let you go gadding about in the rain alone, did you?"

"How was I to know that you were aware of my gadding?" she parried. "My study has a window, and so has my soul."

"Your soul!" "I believe that is what poets call it. Don't they talk some sort of exquisite stuff about the eye being the window of the soul?"

"O. You must excuse my density. A poetical allusion from you is as unexpected as moonlight at midday. Still," she continued, thoughtfully, "I came by the wagon road and that is beyond your range of vision."

"Not when my power of sight is reenforced by a spy-glass," he turned and looked at her. "Which it was," he said, slowly.

"And how do you justify such proceedings to your serene Themes?" she mocked. "Is a spy-glass watch upon the movements of your women acquaintances customary? Does it coincide with her ideas of the eternal fitness of things?"

"I don't care for the serene Themes." | London Mail. he feturned, recklessly. The girl sat I down upon a stump and looked out at

"Oh, Nan, have done! I knew that you could not keep away from the marshes on such a day as this."

"But you did not propose to bespatter your rubber coat on an uncertainty," she remarked, wickedly. The color surged up slowly in his wet cheeks.

"You ought not to be so hard on Themes," he said with a brave attempt at indifference. "She was the mother of Peace and Justice and the Fates."

"And because the sins of the parents are visited upon the children, the virtues of the children should reflect upon the parents? But still, my friend, I must admit small admiration for your goddess of custom. Her golden chains are more binding than any of the iron links forged by Vul-

He was looking at her, but not listening. It was the first time in two years that she had called him friend. And she had done it in the old-time, pleasant way. The tone carried him back to the comfortable times before they had quarreled over one of her reckless invasions against the laws of custom.

"I don't know," he said, vaguely, when he realized that it was his turn to say something. "I'm not well up on Greek mythology."

"But I am talking everyday sense. I say that there are more unwilling victims dragged at the chariot wheels of customs to-day than ever Roman conquerors displayed on their triumphs. There are millions of people grinding their lives out doing things they detest merely because it is customary. You know what I one Must Go to Small Interior Cities

"I wish to the Lord that I did." She looked at him with a touch of calm disdain, then let her eyes drift lazily to the drenched landscape. "I am going to organize an anti-Themes club," she announced. "The members are to pledge themselves to do whatever they feel like doing, irrespective of what is customary."

"I will sign the pledge as soon as t is written." His voice shook a little. Nan turned to look at him.

"You needn't laugh," she began; then she faced about suddenly and quickened her pace. "It is going to rain harder, I think," she remarked, grimly. "No," she returned. "I saw a gleam on the marsh just now. The sun will be out in half an hour." "When are you going to write that pledge?" he questioned, softly. "Oh, I don't know." "Because I am getting a little impatient to sign it.' "Do you find the serene Themes a tyrant at last? Let me tell you, men get off easy compared to what women have to bow down to.'

"I don't know about that. I have gone around for the last two years half-dead to break one of her laws, and not daring to do it." Nan's eyes measured the marsh.

"I shouldn't imagine it would be easy to respect a man who was forever clinging to the skirts of custom," she remarked, impersonally. "Shouldn't you?" he echoed, absently. His finger tips were beginning to tingle. The rain came down afresh pattering briskly upon the back of their rubber coats and veiling the marshes in translucent mists.

"Neither should I," he added, after a long pause. "The serene Themes has stifled my life too long. By this sign I renounce my allegiance." His warm, wet lips caught hers and clung to them. In an instant Nan was facing him through three feet of misty rain.

"You crazy," she exclaimed. "Don't," he protested. "I have only done what I have been longing to do day and night for the last two years. I have renounced-"

"We had better walk on," she cut in, coolly. "The rain isn't exactly the proper place for gossiping."

"Ah, but we do not care a fig for the proprieties. Wait, Nan, I take it back! were with those rain drops on your face. Besides, it really is your turn to ly Mexican. city was filled with something of the charm of the middle ages; no one hurleisure; all had "time" to gather the existence. True, the streets were badly paved, the drainage was most unscientific, mails were not any too punctual and to go far from the capital involved journeys somewhat perilous and always romantic.

To find that lost charm one must now visit the interior cities, and, above dents of the City of Mexico will, almost to a man, tell you that, while there is vastly more "business," more security, better furniture, and more people wearing modern clothes, that, somehow, something has departed, a something that made life very agreeable.

What has been lost is the characteristic features of Moro-Spanish civilization, a ripened product, mature with long centuries of formation. The apostles of progress, wearing knitted brows, their eyes always peering into some future calculation, will deride all this as "rubbish." But they are wrong; many doubtful things have been gained; life has more pressing occupations; there is a growing hurry, much more social show, but far less enjoyment.

The old Mexico was comfortable, enchanting; under the arcades of the cities one felt the charm of Spainis to efface all that is characteristicalous, pushed into the dollar chase and all things are to be treated by the

OUR DUTY TO CUBA.

The peace of Cuba is necessary to the peace of the United States; the health of Cuba is necessary to the health of the United States; the independence of Cuba is necessary to the safety of the United States. The same considerations which led to the war with Spain now require that a commercial arrangement be made under which Cuba can live.—Secretary Root's

I most earnestly ask your attention to the wisdom, indeed, to the vital need, of providing for a substantial reduction in the tariff duties on Cuban imports into the United States. Cuba has in her Constitution affirmed what we desired, that she should stand, in international matters, in closer and more friendly relations with us than with any other power; and we are bound by every consideration of honor and expediency to pass commercial measures in the interest of her material well-being. - President Roosevelt's Message.

England's Experience in South Africa Shows Need of Den-

After 21 months' fighting four dental surgeons have been sent to South Africa to attend to the teeth of the army. Thus does the war office put forth stupendous efforts to atone for past inaptitude, says the London Pall Mall

In an army of a quarter of a million men these four surgeons should be kept tolerably busy. No soldier who has campaigned six months in Africa will, if he be wise, neglect a chance of having his teeth examined, Each surgeon, therefore, will have a clientele of 62,500 officers and men. Assuming that on every day of the week, including Sunday, 30 men are treated by each dentist, the teeth of the army will have been overhauled and the work of filing, excavating and filling completed in something over 69 months. It should console a man on active service suffering to-day from toothache in a precious molar, which he can ill afford to lose, to know that he will not be troubled with the agonizing pain later than April, 1907. In the unequal struggle between trek ox and biscuit on the one hand and mere human teeth on the other. not five per cent. of the men of my company came through scatheless. In many cases the damage was slight; in others, where the teeth were naturally weak and brittle, the mischief done was irreparable. Even with an average set, straining on an average biscuit, you never felt quite certain which would be the first to go-your teeth or your biscuit.

In a letter written from Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, one of the districts of Western Canada, by Henry Laughlin to Dr. C. T. Field, of Chase, Michigan, and which appeared in the Reed City (Michigan) "Clarion," appeared the following:

"If any one should ask you how I like it up here, tell them I am perfectly well satisfied; for me it is just the place. I have as good a piece of land as ever laid out doors. Wouldn't exchange it for the whole of Lake county, or at least the township of Chase.

"Of course I have not been here very long, but as much of the country as I have seen, it cannot be beat anywhere. We had as good crops here last fall as I ever saw, and everything gets ripe in good shape. We had as good ripe potatoes as I ever ate in my life. There is no better place for stock on the continent than here. Horses and cattle will do as good running out all winter here, as they do where they are fed all winter there. Have built me a residence and now all I want is a wife to keep house for me. "We have had a very fine winter so far. It has not been much below zero, if any, except about a week in the middle of November. It has been quite cold the past day or two. We are in log shanties, and they are just muddied up on the outside, and nothing has frozen on the inside as yet. There is no wind or rain, just nice steady weather all the time."

Historie Plat la Sold.

A plat of land in Fourteenth street, New York city, adjoining on the east the site on which stands the Fourteenth street Presbyterian church, has just been sold by J. Edgar Leayeraft & Co. for Rutherford Stuyvesant to Mandelbaum & Lewine. This plat was owned in 1648 by Peter Stuyvesant, who about that time was governor in chief of Amsterdam, in New Netherlands, now called New York, and for many years it was part of his famous Great Bouwerie farm. The property has been in the possession of his descendants ever since he bequeathed it to them until the recent sale, when it passed out of the possession of the Stuyvesant family. Near the site Gov. Stuyvesant planted a pear tree which he brought from Holland in 1647. The tree was cut down in 1867.

THE LOVE OF HUMBUG.

Philosophical Remarks on a Curious Trait of Human Nature and an Odd Character,

The late Gen. Neff seems to have discovered early in life that the love of humbug is innate in the race. By listening to two children when they think they are alone anyone may make the discovery which finally brought disaster to Gen. Neff: "But," the younger child will say, "It's not that way." "Never mind," the older one will reply, "we'll play it's that way." Then for the next hour they will be happy in an enchanted world of their own, playing that things which are not that way are exactly the way they want them. In one way or another they are likely to go on doing this all their lives-perhaps at rarer and rarer intervals after they are 40, but even then occasionally. When they grow too tired to play for themselves through the use of their own imaginations, they will expend from 25 cents to $2 in buying a work of fiction in which some ingenious person uses his imagination to do their playing for them, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Gen. Ueff was an ingenious person with an active imagination, which he put at the service of anyone who showed the least inclination to play that things which are not so will turn out the way we want them. He was a tall, dignified man, with a benevolent countenance, gray hair, a silk hat and a kind smile. He also had a great fund of politeness and a mildly deprecating manner, which he reserved for emergencies. He was passing through one of these emergencies the last time he visited St. Louis. It was, in fact, not only an emergency, but a crisis, for, in spite of his benevolence, his kind smile and his silk hat, he was being searched in front of the bar of the police station, under the direction of a sergeant, on whom he was exhausting the resources of his politeness and his deprecating manner. He was just assuring everyone of how much the mistake made in treating him with such indignity would finally be regretted, when from a private, pocket somewhere on the inside of his frock coat the officer extracted what seemed to be a large roll of money. "That," said the officer, "is his bundle."

When Gen. Neff, who used only the choicest English, heard this coarse expression, he was shocked into silence. He said nothing as the sergeant unrolled the bills and showed that the whole interior of what appeared to be a competence was composed of brown paper. "Take him down," said the sergeant. "Goodnight, gentlemen!" said Gen. Neff.

On looking into Gen. Neff's private history, I found that he had spent his life-or at least the professional part of it-in convincing other people, many of them entire strangers to him, that he had been sent by Providence to reward their merits by mak- from $550,000 to $650,000. ing all the things they had been playing turn out to be so in an incredibly short time. He appeared to them as the enchanter or the good genius appeared in the fairy tales of their youth. In half an hour after his first meeting with a farmer who had come to the city to economize in buying his supplies he would show him a way to raise his mortgage and have enough left in the bank to build a modern house in place of the old farmhouse. Many other things of this kind he could do-so many that he came to be known as the most "expert confidence man" of his generation, a man of many names and many cities, but always with a benevolent countenance and a kind smile which never left him even when he was being

Gen. Neff kept his mental reservations wrapped up inside the genuine bills along with the brown paper they concealed and so ended by becoming a confidence man instead of a really benevolent enchanter. If a man is really benevolent and really an enchanter, he may be of great use in the world, but the most benevolent man I ever knew stopped the attempt at enchantment very early in life. He also had gray hair and a kind smile, but if I had gone to him in the hope that he would advise me in the way I wished to be advised, I knew he would have told me "to do the thing I never liked, which is the thing I ought." Outside of the beautiful world of the enchanted humbug, there is another world in which he lived for more than half a century. Perhaps it took him 30 years in it to learn the kind of smile he had during the 20 years I knew him best, but however he got it, or however long it took him to learn it, he learned it by finding first, not what was pleasant, but what was true-not what he liked, but what he ought. When things were not right he did what he could to set them right, instead of dreaming they would come right, but I think he spent most of his life in setting himself right, and that he acquired his kind smile in doing it. And so he had "peace at

DICTATES OF FASHION.

The camelia is the favorite flower for hats in Paris, not only in white but in colors as well. Pink and white camelias with a knot of black velvet decorate one hat, and again you see a bunch of bright red ones with glossy green leaves on a sable hat.

A handsome gown in black and silver showed bands of maltese lace on fine net, with deep lace flounces in black chantilly lace, sprinkled with the tiniest silver sequins. A touch of Indian gold thread embroidery at neck and sleeves gave a finishing touch.

Gun-metal panne attracts considerable attention in the gay world. It seems destined for ceremonial uses. An opera cloak, a visiting dress or a simple piece of millinery are "built" of the beautiful glossy fabric. The darkest shade of gun metal is even handsomer than the paler tint.

Handsome buttons are the rage this season, and at their best they are really articles of virtu, hand-painted and enameled. Semi-precious stones are very much worn in this form, as well as in every other, and there are turquoise and topaz buttons, buttons of coral, amethyst and amber used on tailor-made gowns.

Very effective for a headdress for evening are two peacock's feathers made entirely of sequins in colors, reproducing the effect of the feathers with remarkable accuracy. The two feathers are carried straight up from two small knots of black velvet, which finish a band of the same material, which is to be carried around the coil

Tight-fitting skirts have provoked rivalry in petticoat makers, who are vying with one another to produce the petticoat which shall occupy the least space. One of the most recent has light-weight jersey cloth for a top, the elastic fabric fitting like a glove to the figure. Silk ruffles finish these skirts to a depth of 12 or 14 inches.

Black silk is now much worn, and though rather old-looking and not becoming to everyone, is undeniably serviceable and useful. A typical black silk gown is made with perpendicular tucks on the whole of the bodice and skirt, ending about the knee line on the latter, the fullness spreading into a deep flounce. The sleeves are also tucked throughout their entire length, and, like the skirt, end in

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the election of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be resorted to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combatted Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

Schley, who under the chaperonage of the board of trade and the Knights Templars, will be Louisville's guest until Friday next, arrived here over the Monon road at 7:15 o'clock Tuesday evening. Here the admiral and Mrs. Schley spent a quiet evening.

The trip from Chicago was one long ovation and so vigorous were some of the handclaps which the distinguished seaman received en route that his hand was nearly "out of business," as the admiral explained. He begged the sub-committee of the Louisville reception committee, which met him at Salem, Ind., to handle it with care.

At Lafayette, Ind., grimy handed machinists rushed from the car shops to take his hand. "Never mind the grease," he said, and the men who had not wished to soil the admiral's gloves | ing, W. Va., who, as a Canton manu-

Hard work by the fire department, however, was necessary to keep the flames from spreading to the Farrington apartment building and residences on the other side of the church. The church was built in 1888, and including its large organ represented an outlay of $105,-000, and had no church debt. The insurance was only $5,000. THE SLEET STORM.

Estimated Property Damage in Little Rock, Ark., Will Exceed $400,000.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 30 .- The heaviest losses ever sustained in Little Rock from a like cause resulted from the terrible storm of sleet and cold rain which prevailed here for the past three days, culminating Tuesday night.

The business section of the city is a scene of desolation and business men on every hand are mourning heavy losses that can not be recovered by insurance. The estimated damage will exceed $400,000, including loss to business. In many instances the loss has not yet attained its limit and continued damage will occur where the accumulated snow and sleet is not removed from the roofs of buildings. In some parts of the city the telegraph and telephone poles are all down, pulling trees and wires with them, and forming a congealed mass of wreckage. Street cars were run irregularly all day. The fall of sleet amounted to about five inches.

Little Rock is practically shut off from the world. The Western Union lines are all down throughout the state. The Southern Telephone and Telegraph Co. reports a loss of $25,-000. The Little Rock Telephone Co. has not a line operating in the city. Most of its wires are broken and many of its poles are down, all for four blocks on Louisiana street having fallen with a crash Wednesday morning. Telephone wires set fire to the office and the fire department was called out and the flames were readily extinguished. Fully 5,000 shade trees were completely demolished.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 30.—Lexington was in darkness Wednesday night and almost every street is blocked with fallen trees, telephone poles and tangled wires. The sleet, which began Tuesday midnight, continued without cessation all day and Wednesday evening the snapping of trees and poles was like cannonading. The carriage was completely wrecked and the driver, Alex Saunders, was fatally hurt. The young couple escaped with comparatively slight injuries and later were married.

The resolutions introduced y Mr. Teller providing for intervention on the part of this government in behalf of the Boer commandant Scheepers, sentenced to death by the British South African authorities, was postponed indefinitely, as Scheepers had been executed. Mr. Teller made a brief but caustic speech on the action of Great Britain in the Boer war and declared that if the facts of this case were as he understood them 'Great Britain, in putting Scheepers to death, is guilty of a vile assassination." The department of commerce bill was under consideration during the greater part of the session, but no definite progress was made. Adjourned until Monday.

House.—The consideration of the urgent deficiency bill, which has been under debate in the house since Monday, was completed Thursday, but, owing to the lateness of the hour, passage of the bill was postponed until Friday. A successful effort was made to increase the pay of rural free delivery carriers from $500 to $600 per annum. Representative Dick (O.) introduced the bill agreed upon by the militia officers of the several states to increase the efficiency of the militia.

Washington, Jan. 25.-House.-The house passed the urgent de-ficiency appropriation bill and deficiency appropriation bill and voted the remainder of the session to private pension legislation. It then adjourned until Monday. The republicans forced a record vote on the amendment to the deficiency bill to appropriate $600,000 for the "protection and shelter" of American soldiers in the Philippines and 16 democrats voted for it. Representative H. C. Smith (Mich.) introduced a bill repealing Paragraph 11 of Section 2 of the war revenue act. The section which it is proposed to abolish is that imposing a tax of $50 upon bankers having a capital of not exceeding $25,000. The senate was not in session.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Senate—An animated and prolonged discussion was precipitated in the senate Monday over the right of army officers to criticize utterances made in the senate or elsewhere on the conduct of affairs in the Philippines. A number of private pension bills were passed. Just before the adjournment of the senate Senator Spooner introduced a substitute for the Nicaraguan canal bill. The new bill practically authorizes the president of the United States to choose between the Panama and the Nicaraguan routes.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Senate—For an hour Wednesday the senate had under discussion the question whether a censorship of press dispatches exists in Manila. While no such turbu lent scenes as Tuesday's were enact ed the debate for a time was very spirited. The secretary of war was quoted as saying that no press censorship now existed in the Philippines, and a letter from Gen. Greely, chief signal officer of the army, was presented by Mr. Beveridge (Ind.), making the statement officially that there was no censorship of press dispatches and that "the press is entire ly free.'

House-The house adjourned after being in session 25 minutes. Mr. Hopkins (Ill.) reported the permanent census bill and gave notice that he would call it up Thursday. A request to make the oleomargarine bill a special order for next Monday was objected to on the democratic side.

A Confused Witness.

Amid the unfamiliar surroundings of a law court the average person is apt to be more or less confused, and on the witness stand one must have his wits about him to endure the cross-examination of a skillful lawyer. In an action in an Indiana court, involving a suit for paymen. for a tailor's account, a witness testified that a certain overcoat was badly made, one sleeve being shorter than the other. "Now," said the attorney for the plaintiff, slowly rising to cross-examine, "vou will swear that one of the sleeves was shorten than the other?" placing a heavy as cent on the word "shorter." will," promptly answered the witness 'Then, sir," thundered the lawyer, with a flash of indignation, "I am to understand you positively deny that one of the sleeves was longer than the other?" strongly emphasizing "longer." Startled, the witness have tened to say: "I do deny it." Then he wondered why there was a storm & laughter in court, and it took him minute or two to realize that in the same coat one sleeve could be snorter than the other and likewise long er.-Golden Days.

HINTS FOR FARMERS PEOPLE OF THE DAY The Burlington's New Fast Den-

Some mares are very stubborn and aggravating about going into the barn at night and have to be driven in from the yard by force. Then, after getting them into the barn, it is still harder to run them into their stalls. Finally when they do go into the right stalls it is a very natural thing to strike them over the rump with a halter, board or anything that comes handy just as they jump through the door, says J. P. Foster, state veterinarian of South Dakota. I saw this done once, causing the mare to fall. This took place while letting her in from the yards at evening, and the mare lost her foal that night. Of course, there are many other causes that produce abortion, and the foregoing is simply an example of a few of the minor accidents that have come under my notice and might happen at almost any time. The remedy for this class of accidents is prevention. If there is ice in the yard and there is too much of it to be chopped up, ashes or manure may be spread over it and then wet down so that it will adhere and freeze to the ice underneath. Mares that are mean should not be allowed to run with others, and it may be necessary to let them have a small yard by themselves.

Care of Farm Harnesses. The harness should be given a good cleaning and oiling at least once a year. It should be taken apart so that every part is treated, says Pacific Tree and Vine. It is usually necessary to wash solve a bit of soap in a quart of soft water and boil, then add one quart of kerosene and stir and beat until a creamy emulsion is formed. Roots Versus Ensilagê. We have strong doubts if it is profitable to grow roots as stock feed in this country, either in the eastern or western states, says Prairie Farmer. Wood Ashes For Fruit.

Wood ashes is a most valuable fertilizer for all fruit crops, but on account of the readily available condition of the contained potash is not durable. It is also valuable on all heavy soils for the mechanical effect. There is less potash in such ashes than is generally supposed; hence there is little danger of putting too much on. Last spring a pile of ashes from the cook stove was placed at one corner of the strawberry bed, says Farm and Ranch. The pile has accumulated until it is about 18 inches high and spread over about 75 Does your horse "feel his square feet. The thriftiest and best plants are those where the soil around oats"? Hon. J. H. Millard, the new senator from Nebraska, was chosen at the close of the legislature in the spring to succeed the late Senator Hayward, whose unexpired term was being filled by Senator Allen by appointment of the governor. When Senator Millard first entered Nebraska, Pawnee Indians overran the country. That was in 1856, when Nebraska was a territory. There were only three white farmers in the county in which Omaha is loby birth. His parents left the country when he was young and settled in lowa. Later the son crossed into Nebraska. PROMINENT ST. LOUIS FAIR PROMOTERS.

Over a score of the most prominent citizens of St. Louis have this week been guests of old friends and neighbors in Kentucky, for every member of the party is a son of the Bluegrass State They have been here for the putpose of interesting the Legislature in the passage of the pending $200,000 appropriation bill for a Kentucky Building and Exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition of 1903. Some telling arguments have been put forth by the former Kentuckians why their native State should be well represented at the big show, and they succeeded in arousing a great deal of enthusiasm in the project.

It was a memorable swing around the circuit the visitors made. They reached Foley's Louisville, Monday morning. The Board of Trade, Commercial Club, and citizens generally, received them with open arms. At the State Capital on Tuesday, Gov. Beckham and Mayor Darnell headed a reception committee that met the visitors at the depot, and at noon a joint session of the House and Senate was held with the

From Frankfort, where an entire day was enjoyably spent, the visitors proceeded to Lexington, and were received with open arms in the heart of the Bluegrass. The party returned home Thursday morning.

The delegation was the most prominent one yet sent out by the World's Fair Legislative Committee. Three ex-Governors and the present Lieutenant Governorof Missouri were in the list, and all of them were born on Kentucky soil. Thesedistinguished former Kentuckians were: Ex-Gov. David R. Francis, President of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Company, Ex-Gov. Wm. J. Stone and Ex-Gov. Thos. T. Crittenden, and Lieutenant Governor John A. Lee. It is believed that the excursion will result in a handsome showing by Kentucky at the World's Fair

Gentlemen: — Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain

Very truly yours,
